

Got To Go

illustrated by Jackson

An illustration of a large tree trunk on the left side of the page. Several small, white birds with blue faces and black markings on their wings are flying around the tree. One bird is perched on a branch near the top. In the bottom left corner, a pair of hands wearing green gloves holds a long purple pole with a net at the end. Another net is visible in the bottom right corner. The background is a light, hazy sky with some green leaves falling.

What is this?

Men want to get the birds with nets.

Tim does not heed what his pals tell him. He wants to play.

Why, Tim?

It is time to fly.
It is not time to look at a bug.

Tim has found a spot with a lot of bugs!

Where is he?

The illustration depicts a white bird with a blue face and a black collar around its neck, flying in a cloudy sky. The bird is surrounded by several colorful butterflies in shades of red, purple, blue, orange, yellow, and white. In the foreground, there are green stems with red flowers and a patch of golden grass. The overall scene is bright and cheerful, with a soft, painterly style.

Oh no, Tim is lost!

His pals are gone.

What will he do?

Tim lands by a stream.

He has a big drink.

Aaam!

Tim finds a worm to have as a snack. It will help him fly for a long time.

He sets off.

He sees cool bugs
and wants to stop,
but he does not.

Tim is doing his best not to look at things. But what is that?

The sky is full
of fire bugs!

But oh no!

Where did
that light come from?

The men with
nets are back!
Can Tim make
it back up into
the sky?

Tim gets up in the air. He gets too
high for the nets
to catch him.

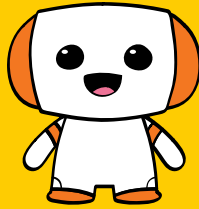

Tim has his eyes
shut so that he will not stop. But what did he miss?

His flock!

Tim will make sure
that he does not get lost next time.
